Interesting Facts About Our Increased Receipts of Live Stock-Our Packers Highly Gratified in Regard to the Results of the First Years Businessons Why the Business Will Grow

Everything and everybody was in full holiday attire at the stock yards and packiness stir except the transfer of the company's offices from the old to the new yards. Telegrams that came in from St. Lonis, Chicago and other points opened up with "no markets" and closed with the time honored salutation: "A merry Christmas and a happy New Year."

The commission men, some of them, occupied seats at their respective offices and figured on business for the remaindance.

and in a general conversation remarked that Wichita had every reason in the world to feel encouraged over her first gear's business in the stock and packing business. In speaking of agricultre and stock growing he said the farmers have become aroused as to their best interests, and will in the future greatly improve the present system of farming, and with this they will also improve stock raising. He says a large portion of our present crop that cannot be moved, will be fed to stock, and as a result shippers will greatly increase future shipments of hogs, cattle and sheep to this market. The very quickest way to get handsome returns from the enormous crops of this section is one of mind shown by an Ohio phyian saved a man a posa. That useful m ber was severed by a fall upon a sharp corner. and the attendant M. D., by promptly placing the surrendard piece where it belonged, se-cured a healing "by first intention," and the subsequent restoration of the organ, plus an

Less successful was the replacing of a nose by a young man of this city many years ago.
While engaged in playfully "fencing" with a companion, a reckless pass cleanly cut off the young fellow's nose. He had not studied physiology for nothing, and, acting upon this knowledge, grabbed the severed organ and chapped it on the bleeding surface it had just quitted. Then his nose was bound firmly on, and nature was left to take her course. She did this admirably. When the bandages were removed the two parts were found to be grown togother beautifully. Nothing could be nicer, except that the unfortunate young man had put his nose on upside down! The nostrils stood as open to heaven as the flues at the apex of a chimney.

The memories that come down through a vista of thirty years, since this sad affair took place, are a trifle misty and unreliable as to the subsequent career of the man with the inverted nose. He is believed to be dead. During his life, however, he was known to declare that, for purposes of snuff taking, he had the very finest nose in the world, but that to be caught in a heavy shower, without an umbrella, was tantamount to drowning. Those that are suddenly deprived of a nose should be careful to replace it with the perforations down. Human life is made up of trifles, and some of these have power to engender discomfort, when it comes to an up side down nose,—Pittsburg Bulletin.

About Reading Newspapers. I see that Bishop Foss in his address to the class seeking admission to conference, adrised the young ministers to give scanty attention to the daily newspapers.

But I must certainly disagree with this episcopal dictum, for I think the wise reading of the daily newspapers is a symmetrical education. While things slip in sometimes which ought to be passed by, the editors of a great newspaper have the true Midas touch, and know the gold of promise from the brass of profession. There is no noble sentiment no true strain of poetry, no sonorous word fit to roll round the world, no gem of thought out finds its way at last into the columns of the daily press. The newspaper is a fresh photograph of human life—ou, has it not depth of meaning for the noblest cormon! I read often the advertisements of the paper, and find in them the wit, power and also the pathos of life. I thank the daily press for the living sermons it has given me. As on autumn's day the wind shakes the trees and the leaves fall down and make an amethys tine and golden floor, so this great tree, the press, shaken every day, sheds down its white leaves upon the world—leaves of knowledge;

When I see a young minister who wisely rends the daily paper I am sure he is growing in grace, at least on that spot where it is thought the average minister is sadly deficient.-Clergyman in Pittsburg Dispatch.

"Why under the canopy do storekeepers cover fruits and confectionery with wire cages?" said an honest agriculturist to his city cousin, who keeps a store. "Are they afraid the apples will jump out of the basket, or do they think the chestnuts will of their own accord flud their way to a newspaper office, so as to be on hand when the foremen howls for copy !" "If the goods were not pro tected the dealers would lose by petty thefts more than they make by short weight and heavy paper" was the answer. The man from up south kept his eyes open for a short time while standing near a case of confectionery which was unguarded. It seemed as if every boy and girl who came into the store was of opinion that the candy was designed for free distribution, and a great many grown people helped themselves to a couple of cara meis, a few nuts, or a chunk of molasse candy while waiting for their evening papers or deciding what brand of cigarettes would best match their new ties. "When I know my customers," said the merchant, "I charge them extra on what they purchase, and get even that way. What the transients get away with I courge up to profit and loss."— Rochester Post-Express.

some little rodent. Rats are natives of Asia and their raids westward belong to comparatively modern times. The little animal was unknown in ancient Europe. The black rat first came to Europe from Asia in the six-teenth century, and about the beginning of gray rat came to Europe from India by way of Russia, and is now known as the Norway rat from a mistaken tradition that it came from Norway to England, and from the latter

Speaking Pictures. The picture gallery of the future is likely to be an apparatus for exhibiting a succession of instantaneous photographs as a moving picture of the person represented, this apparatus being so geared with the phonograph that as the latter gives the individual's speech the former will reproduce his gestures and facial expression. By such means an absent actor, for example, might be brought before an audience, or when present be might witan attacher, or when present he might wit-ness the reproduction of his own acting. This combination of phonograph and photograph is a suggestion lately made to the French academy by M. G. Guercult, but experiments with a similar arrangement were made about a year and a half ago by M. A. Bandsept, of Brussels,—Exchange.

Here is a wise thing said by some ones "It is an excellent thing for any pen to realize the fact that the world is not all contained within the limits of his own horizon. An amusing instance of this kind of mistake that is made by people who are ignorant or surgestul of this simple fact is given, in the focust experience of a fiely triveler, in Acia. One of the Makey fajoins confident to her the willingness to learn English. But, 'be said, 'there is this objection to English, that it is only spoken by a dozen gauges in the world, even constring the governor of Singapore and his followers, while wherever you go to the north, south, east or west, or beyond the will—you find Malay spokes.' That Malay was right so far as his own horizon was concerned; but what is include intrinsic large and it what in the between of truth, lie behind a truth is between of truth, lie behind a truth and what infinite between of truth, lie behind a truth and what infinite between of truth, lie behind a truth and what infinite between of truth, lie behind a truth and the between of truth and the said truth and the said truth and the said truth and the said truth are said to the said truth and the sa
